La Paz nace en 1929, como un merendero de playa dónde podías desde alquilar un traje de baño, una taquilla para guardar tus cosas, pegarte una ducha, hasta alquilar mesas y sillas. Irónicamente en 1939, en los últimos días de la guerra civil, una bomba derribó La Paz. Pero un año después reconstruimos el proyecto, y fue cuando empezamos a ofrecer nuestros servicios como casa de comidas, hasta hoy, que tras cuatro generaciones continuamos elaborando la cocina tradicional de la misma forma que antes.

This building was founded in 1929 as an open-air lunchroom, where people could rent out bathing suits, keep their clothes clean and safe, shower, rent out tables and chairs, etc.
During the Spanish civil war, a bomb shelter was built underneath the lunchroom for protection from air raids, where families and neighbours hid themselves away.
During the last air raids of 1939, a bomb unfortunately demolished the lunchroom above; it was because of this that the owners then decided to call the restaurant 'La Paz' (meaning 'Peace').
From 1940 onwards, the lunchroom started to function as an open-air restaurant and even today, after 4 generations in the same family, we still continue to develop our typical dishes in the same style we did all those years ago.
